Focus

In my first 6 months at Critical Mass, I would love to learn and build an interactive animated website. I want to create web pages for clients that have impactful landing pages that are suited to their brand. The reason I want to pursue a more visually technical subject was that I want to explore and open my mind to a more multi-dimensional aspect of web development. Most of the time when looking at websites, my mind just sees blocks on blocks. However, seeing creative sites and portfolios, I realize that my thinking might be a bit restricted to the box model. I want to explore a little bit further to get out of my comfort zone and to really polish my front-end development skill.

I want to create a site impactful, accessible, and beautiful that explores further than the 2-dimensional plane.
